MORE ABOUT THE PROGRAM:

Now more than ever, behavioral health leaders in California need to adapt and flex their leadership to adequately respond and serve during these times. The Leadership Institute Virtual Series is designed to help good behavioral health leaders become great leaders in the field of public behavioral health care. This program is modeled after the in-person CIBHS Leadership Institute which has trained almost 700 California leaders since inception in 2002.

Today's behavioral health leaders must possess the skills and self-awareness that enables them to imagine, influence, and support system quality amid continuous change. They must be committed to mitigating adverse social determinants of health and to reducing health disparities; to listening to their customers and their communities; and to discovering and implementing new practices that better respond to customer needs. All this, while responding to a global health crisis, changes in payment structures, local demands and while attracting and retaining high quality staff.

This virtual series offers behavioral health leaders the opportunity to discover and expand their leadership strengths; to learn and explore new skills with their peers; and to learn from great teachers. This unique learning experience is offered in collaboration with the California Institute for Behavioral Health Solutions, the University of Southern California's Sol Price School of Public Policy, and the County Behavioral Health Directors Association.

THE FORMAT:

A group of approximately 30 participants will engage in a total of 8 live 2-hour interactive online training sessions. Additionally, participants will view on their own, a 1-hour prerecorded lecture prior to each live session. Using the Flipped Classroom Model (described below), participants are expected to identify and apply learning to workplace challenges. Small group discussions are included to support the application of learning and encourage networks among participants during and after the training.

THE FLIPPED CLASSROOM APPROACH:

This training approach is designed to increase engagement and learning by having participants complete pre-work on their own, leaving live session time to engage in critical reflection, application, and problem-solving through open discussion and small group work. Pre-work will include viewing a 1-hour recorded presentation prior to each live session and may also involve completing short assessments or assignments.

FACULTY:

Both the recorded pre-sessions and the live interaction sessions will be conducted by nationally and internationally recognized faculty. All have been selected for their forward-thinking knowledge of, and experience in, multiple aspects of leadership, both within and outside of public behavioral health systems. Faculty selection is informed by rigorous evaluations, completed by staff and participants, that rate presenters on content relevance, depth of knowledge, and learning experience. A partial listing of faculty includes: Laree Kiely, PhD, The Kiely Group; Jei Africa, Psy.D, Marin County; Rod Hickman, Hickman and Associates.

WHO SHOULD APPLY?

County Mental Health/Behavioral Health Directors, Substance Use Disorder Services Administrators, Deputy Directors, senior level leaders and those who are preparing to assume senior level behavioral health leadership roles, as well as Executive Directors, executive and senior level leaders of community-based, non-profit agencies that provide public mental health or substance use disorder services are encouraged to apply.

The participation of leaders and emerging leaders reflecting the diversity of our communities, including lived experience as mental health clients/persons in recovery, and/or as family members is also strongly encouraged.

Applications must include a recommendation from Behavioral Health/Mental Health Director, Substance Use Disorders/AOD Director, or Agency Executive Director.

County Behavioral Health/Mental Health Departments are encouraged to share this application with their CBO partners and to encourage and support participation of partner leaders.

REGISTRATION FEE:

The LI program registration fee is $3,950.00. This includes access to each of the sessions, the 360 Assessment and Myers Briggs Type Inventory, as well as an Online repository of materials and resources.
